DISTRIBUTION AND PRODUCTION GAINS IN STATE HEAVY

Demand for All Commodities Active, Federal Reserve Report Says —Retails Purchases Largest Since 1920

PARTICULAR INCREASES IN MANUFACTURING ACTIVITIES

ST.LOUIS, Mar. 2.—Production and distribution of merchandise in the Eighth Federal Reserve District which includes part of Kentucky, showed heavy gains over the corresponding periods during the two preceding years, according to the report issued by William McMartin, chairman of the board and federal reserve agent. The lines investigated showed that production and distribution also was relatively larger in volume than is usual at this season of the year.

The demand for all varieties of commodities is active, according to the report, and in some important lines, notably textiles and iron and steel business was restricted by inability to turn out or procure goods to forward on the deliveries specified in orders offered. Retail stocks are light both in the city and country and wholesalers ad jobbers report an abonrmally heavy volume of small, fill-in orders for immediate shipment. This is construed to mean that retailers underestimated their requirements and that demands of actual consumers have augmented with increased employment improved conditions and higher prices in the markets for farm products, according to the report.

"The number of buyers at wholesale establishments in the large cities during late January and the opening weeks of February was larger than for any similar period since 1920" the report stated. "While their purchasing still indicates caution and conservatism, the size of orders placed and the variety of goods taken reflect a greater degree of confidence in the near-term future at least. Commitments for forward delivery are steadily increasing, and in most lines are close to levels recognized as normal in pre-war years."

Cold Stimulates Winter Sales

"The recent cold weather has served to stimulate the movement of winter merchandise, such as heavy clothing, rubber footwear, fuel, etc., which had lagged somewhat earlier in the season. From some sections came complaints of a slowing down in retail trade, due to snows, rains and heavy roads which prevented farmers coming to town and kept shoppers indoors in the cities. On the whole, however, the seasonable weather helped business and prospects, especially in the grain areas, where needed moisture and snow protection to growing crops was abundantly supplied."

Reports direct and indirect bearing on manufacturing indicate increasing activity. Replies to questionnaires from virtually all the leading interests show heavier outputs than a year ago, and a number point out that their production would have been larger but for the fact that they were unable to secure labor and raw materials sufficient to employ more of their plant capacity, according to the report.

Reports of the U. S. Department of Labor, and from State labor bureaus and private agencies indicate a further increase in employment and virtual cessation of voluntary unemployment.

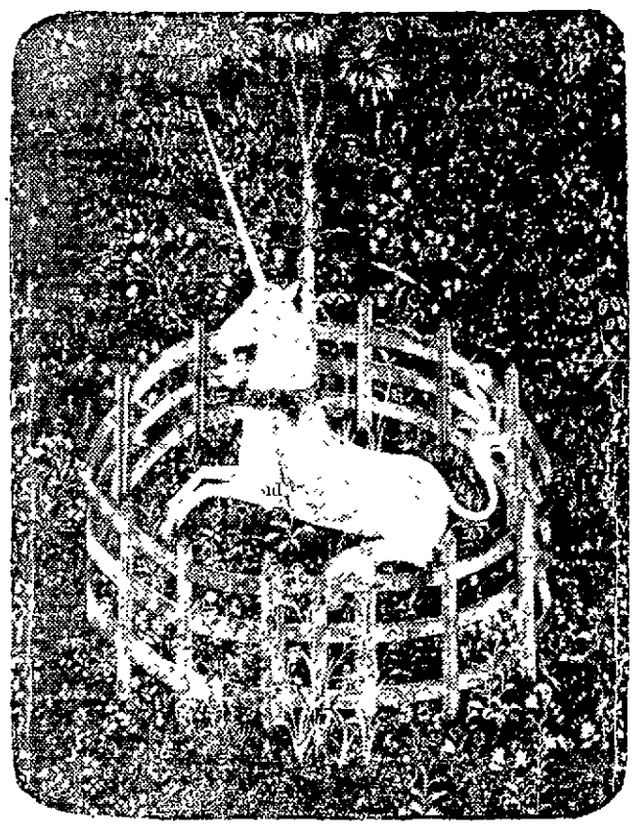
"The condition of fall sown grains in this district underwent no marked change during the past thirty days," the report stated. "Rains and snows have helped wheat materially, and latest reports indicate a strong position for this crop, with less than usual winter killing. In some counties where development had been backward, the lost ground has been recovered. Some complaints of Hessian fly are made, and alternate freezing and thawing has caused damage in certain sections.

Tobacco Business Good

"Weather as a rule has been favorable to hadling tobacco, and the crop is being marketed i volume with prices satisfactory. Approximately 200,000,000 pounds of leaf have been sold during the present marketing season by the Burley and Dark Leaf Tobacco Growers' Cooperative Associations, about 125,000,000 pounds representing burley sales. Both associations are functioning well, and prices thus far realized have been satisfactory. The recent excessive rains in Kentucky and Tennessee have interfered to some extent with tobacco deliveries by the farmers.

"Geeral farm work throughout the district has made excellent progress. In most sections of the district plowing and the preparing of the soil for spring crops are in advance of the usual at this time of year, though rains and snows have halte dactivities in the immediate past. The total number of live stock on farms i states of the district is the largest ever recorded, with dairy herds showing goodly increases over a year ago. Generally farm animals are in excellent health, the only complaints on this score received being of scattered cases of hog cholera in Indiana, Illinois and Missouri."

TAPESTRY PURCHASE STIRS FRANCE



When it became known that John D Rockefeller, Jr., had purchased for $1,000,000. the famous La Rouchef oucauld tapestries, the ire of the French press was aroused They charged that the owner had agreed never to permit the art treasures to leave France. The tapestries date from 1450.

MERCHANT PUZZLED WHEN MAN BUYS HELMET "FOR EXPERIMENT"

Many soldier helmets are bought for souvenirs or for use as flower baskets, but rarely in these times of peace are they purchased for what they were originally intended, namely, the deflecting of bullets and other harmful missiles from vital spots supposed to exist beneath the cranium. An exception to this rule occurred recently when a man whose mein was not decidedly urban purchased a helmet at a local army goods store.

"It's for an experiment,' he confided mysteriously, when asked concerning the intended use of the head protector.

Could it be that them an was a moonshiner and wanted te steel hat to protect his head from bullets of raiders, or was he only an ordinary married man wo has solved the problem of head protection when the "storm and strife" gets on the warpath with the rolling pin?

WEST END RESIDENCE DESTROYED BY FIRE

The residence of L. K. Keck on West Chester avenue, car the Junction was completely destroyed by fire last night. The fire was not discovered until it had gained considerable hedaway and when the fire engine arrived on the scene half of it ahd been cosumed by te flames .

A portion of thehouse could have been saved had the fire plug been nearer. As it was fifteen hundred feet distant from the property, there was not enough hose to reach it.

NEVER HEARD LAW AGAINST MURDER

Mrs. Saludes Fails to Answer Question Did She Know It Wrong to Kill

By Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Mar. 2—Mrs. Pauline Saludes, on trial charged with slaying Oscar Martellier insurance broker, declared today on the witness stand that she never had heard of any law against murder and she is not interested in the matter. "From your knowledge of life, did you not know it was wrong to kill people without justification," Judge Keening asked. "I am not qualified to answer that question" she said. She reiterated that she wanted Martellier jailed because he had taken her property from her and had no thought of killing him

STUDENT INDICTED ON MURDER CHARGE

Youth Killed Night Watchman on University Campus—Allowed $10,000 Bail

By Associated Press.

LEXINGTON, Mar. 2.—Hearing of the plea for bail for Warren H. Middleton, student at the University of Kentucky, who was indicted on charge of the murder of Joseph Self, night watchman at the University was begun in circuit court here today. The shooting occurred on the campus and followed differences over Middleston's presence on the campus in an automobile with Miss Coleman, another student.

At the conclusion of the hearing, Middleton was allowed bail in the sum of ten thousand which was furnished by nineteen citizens of Paducah were Middleton's parents reside.

NINETEEN MORE INDICTMENTS MADE

Mat Hoskins Held on Four Charges— Two Convictions in Court Yesterday

PINEVILLE, Mar. 2.—Nineteen more indictments were returned in Thursday's report of the grand jury, making a total of thirty-nine so far. Mat Hoskins was indicted on four charges, they were transporting liquor maliciously shooting, with intent to kill, possession of liquor, and hindering officers.

Other indictments which have been made public are: Charlie Roop, charged with maliciously shooting and wounding George Winfield; Buck Garret, malgiciously shooting and wounding Will Hendrickson: Will Hendrickson charged with maliciously shooting Buck Brackett: Roy White charged with forgery and Baxter Andrews, charged with criminal assault.

With two convictions Thursday and many other cases called the misdemeanor docket of this criminal court was completed and the felony docket was begun Friday.

The convictions made yesterday were: Joe Parsons, who was fined $300, given thirty days in jail, and placed under $1,000 peace bond on the charge of selling liquor; and John Brock was fined $50 and give ten days in jail on the charge of drawing dangerous weapons.

The trial of Isam Alder, who is charged with the murder of a woman at the station a number of years ago, was continued until the next term of court.

WIVES SHOULD RECEIVE THEIR FIXED SALARIES

Few husbands seem to realize that wives, like other members of "the firm," should have fixed salaries—at least to cover household expenses. It makes for economy, for a wife soon realizes that what she saves is hers. Where a wife as charge accounts, or must as for every dollar she gets, she doesn't mind how much she depends. Try it for a year and be convinced.

COMBS TESTIFIES IN CLAYPOLE CASE

Says George McIntosh Fired First Shot, Causing Fight Where Several Were Killed

By Associated Press.

CATLETTSBURG, Mar. 2.—French Combs, on the trial of Will Barnett, charged with killing Asbury Combs in the Claypole election case, testified today that he saw Ed Davis shoot Asbury Combs but that Geo. McIntosh shot Asbury Combs first and started the fuit which resulted in the killing of a number of persons, wich occurred in Breathitt county in November.

SPRING HAS COME IS ASSURANCE OF SUNSHINE TODAY

That "spring has come" seems to be the prevailing opinion in Middlesboro today. The bright sunshine, the invigorating breeze and that vague, indefinable something in the air gives credence to this idea.

As if to make up for the discomforts occasioned by the cold, bleak days of winter, the Weatherman is now lading out sunshine in copious quantities. This welcome change has filled the streets with people, young and old, who delight in a promenade in the glorious radiance which so resembles real spring. Cares and troubles have disappeared like the early morning dew and a spirit of camaraderie reigns supreme.

Of course we have the gloomy prohpets who are ever ready with the prediction that "we will have more cold weather yet" but we prefer not to listen to this. We would rather bask in the warmth and brightness of the present day and enjoy the pleasant, if transient embrace of spring.

DOUBLE HEADER GAME TONIGHT

POLA RECONSIDERS WILL WED CHAPLIN

Reconciliation Effected After Announcement Last Night Engagement Was Broken

By Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Mar. 2.—Pola Negri, Polish motion picture tragedienne, last night announced she broke off her engagement to marry Charlie Chaplin screen comedian. She made another announcement this morning that reconciliation was effected "We have made up," said Miss Negri. "I have taken him back and we are quite reconciled and engaged again. I am so happy I cannot sleep."

"The whole trouble came about," Miss Negri said through a statement in te newspaper "that Charlie said he was too poor to marry so of course I broke the engagement. But last night Charlie came to see me and swore he never said any such thing. He said he loved me and could not live without me. So of course I believed him and have taken him back."

IRREGULARITIES IN HANDBOOK SYSTEM

Ed Alvey Accused of Making $13,000 Month on Race Betting Operations

By Associated Press.

LOUISVILLE, Mar. 2.—The Louisville Times today says complete accounts of operations of an alleged elaborate handbook system said to have been conducted by Ed Alvey, widely known local figure, shows a profit of thirteen thousand for one moth. It asserts this was learned today through seizure of Alvey's books when his offices were raided here by police February 23. Those familiar with the hand book race betting operations say this would mean a loss to betters of between forty nad fifty thousand monthly. Alvey was arrested but released on nominal bond. He is now engaged in a legal struggle to regain possession of his books which he declares were seized without due process of law.

BANDIT NOW IS EMPEROR

RAISULI

LONDON, March 2—The world's most famous bandit is now a respectable emperor.

Ahmed Ben Mohammed Raisuli, whose kidnaping of an American in 1904 prompted President Roosevelt's ultimatum: "Perdicarus alive or Raisuli dead,'" is enforcing peace and order in his good-sized domain in Spanish Morocco.

Nominally he is responsible to the Spanishking. Really he is the big boss.

e is employing the same tactics that he did when his brazen banditry startled the world and nearly took the sultan of Morocco from his throne. When his abduction of Perdicarus almost involved this country in serious complication, he left him go free for a price.

Since then Raisuli has been stirring up his fellow Moroccans to resist the Spanish rule.

About 18 months ago a Spanish army ran away, Spanish garrisons were besieged, captured and the soldiers massacred and eGneral Silvesdiers was killed, his body disappearing from the battlefield.

All Spain raged. The common people cursed the very idea of colonial expansion with its threat to the lives of teir sons, its conscripted armies, its higher taxes. The government took prompt action against some of the army officers held responsible for the Moroccan defeat.

But at the bottom of it all was Raisuli. He was placated—for a price.

He was made ruler of the district.

To make his position secure, Spain has just completed negotiations with Abd-el-Krim, another rebel chief. Under this arrangement the Moroccan released about 400 Spanish prisoners, including 40 women and children.

Spain at the same time released her Moorish prisoners. The release of the Spaniards cost the government about one million dollars—mainly tribute money.

LEAGUE OF WOMEN VOTERS MEET IN DES MOINES

BEGIN SURVEY FOR BOSWORTH TRAIL IN NEXT TEN DAYS

Completion of Road, H. H. Asher Says At Cost About Four Million, Depends on Amount State Funds Appropriated

FOUR COUNTIES ALONG ROAD HAVE VOTED TENTH AMOUNT

PINEVILLE Mar. 2.—The survey fro the Bosworth trail will be begun within the next ten days, according to H. H. Asher, member of the highway commission but the completion of the road depends entirely upon when a sufficient amount of state funds may be appropriated for this work. The cost of the ninety mile road, will be approximately $4,000,000 according to Mr. Asher. The four counties, Clay, Jackson, Bell and Madison have voted road bonds of about one tenth this amount, or $400,000, which could be used for the Bosworth Trail if the various counties saw fit to so appropriate it. However, so far only a sufficient amount for the survey has been granted. The survey will cost only a few thousand dollars, Bell county's part approximately $4,000, for the twelve miles of road.

Bell county has voted about $75,000 for roads. Clay county $200,000. Jackson, $125,000 and Madison $50,000. Should the road bond issue pass the next legislature, it would be possible to complete this trail within the next two or three years, according to Mr. Asher, but without state funds practically nothing but the survey can be done.

L. L. Pearsall, chief location engineer, will have charge of the work of the survey.

GIRL SAID TO BE INSANE BROUGHT HERE, NO TRIAL

Mary Ellison, said to be insane, was brought to the city hall this morning by Deputy J. C. Mitchell who understood that County Judge J. S. Bingham would be there to pass on the case. It being the rule that the circuit court acts on such matters when it is in session and there being no provisions made for the transportation of such persons to Pineville for investigation, the girl was released and allowed to return to her home which is outside te city limits.

Several weeks ago it was reported to Deputy Mitchell that the girl was subject to fits of lunacy which rendered her dangerous to herself and others. He was asked then to take her into custody but refrained from doing so because he had no warrant. Chas. G. Smyth, magistrate, furnished the necessary papers and he brought her here today at his own expense.

The parents fear for the safety of the girl. She frequently leaves home insufficiently clad and was absent one time for a week. At lucid intervals, the girl is perfectly normal.

FENCE TO PROTECT HEDGE BUILT AROUND SCHOOL YARD

As a protection to the young hedge which borders the high school lot on the canal side a wire fence, supported by strong posts, has been built. It is said to be only a "temporary" arrangement, but has all the ear-marks of a permanent, well-built fence.

While it cannot be said that the esthetic appearance of the lawn has been accentuated by the temporal obstruction, it is hoped that the hedge, unhampered by the trampling of hundreds of feet, will soon reach a height that will conceal the unsightliness of the fence. As an additional protection to the lawn, a fence is being run alog ehe front also the permanency of this latter fence has not been determined.

A THOUGHT

Verily, verily, I say unto you, except a corn of wheat fall into the ground and die, it abideth alone: but if it die, it bringeth forth much fruit. —John 12:24.

Death is the dropping of the flower that the fruit may swell.—Beecher.

TUT STYLES

Bobbed hair was going out of style when King Tut's tomb was discovered under the sands of Egypt. But for leading hairdressers say that bobbed hair may rule for another year or two, as part of the King Tut fashion crazes now being planned by dictators of styles.

Bobbed hair and bobbed wigs were "the thing" in King Tut's day.

Among the rich and royal ladies of Tut's time, the headdress was a masterpiece that must have required weeks of work, elaborate and fantastic, hair and jewelry forming large wings on top of the head.

The high steppers and flashy dressers strung their hair through beads, giving the effect of a crop of necklaces growing out of the skull. Keep your eyes open. Some in our community will try.

Girls who have been plucking their eyebrows into straight lines, with tweezers, will be glad to learn that such was the style in King Tut's day.

When it came to gowns, the most daring Egyptian social leaders wore garments made entirely of transparent beads.

Starched and carefully pressed ruffles and pleats were the rage in Cairo and other Egyptian cities 3500 years ago.

Jewelry was worn extravagantly, profusely—large rings, bracelets, armlets, anklets and headbands. The turquoise was the most favored of precious stones. The fans were carried, also hand mirrors. Nails were stained reddish-yellow with henna juice. "Loud" perfumes and thick oils were rubbed all over the body.

A queer custom among fashionable ladies of ancient Egypt was painting a second set of eyebrows below the eyes, so that the optics resembled sandwiches.

How much of this barbaric oriental display will creep into the fashions of American women? Probably more than any of us now dream.

J. M. Gidding (of J. M. Gidding & Co., New York City) says every great collection of Egyptian antiques in the world's museums has a flock of style designers and jewelers around it. They are getting ready to flood the markets with new styles.

Says Mr. Gidding: "This is being assisted by a reaction from the dress prevailing for so many years during and after the war. There has never been a time when the designer has had to keep so carefully in touch with the news. It is necessary to keep posted constantly by cable."

The average father, who foots the bills, will soon curse the day when a scientists' shovel, striking the top stone of a flight of steps, started the uncovering of King Tut's tomb.

THE OPEN FORUM

The Booneway Highway.

The Booneway Highway which passes through this part is often called the "Dixie Highway." Also it is known as the "Wilderness Road" and the "Eastern Dixie Highway." Now if I am rightly informed, the proper name for this great thoroughfare passing through here straight from Cincinnati via Lexington, Corbin, Middlesboro, Cumberland Gap and to Knoxville, is the 'Booneway Highway," and I am sure no more appropriate name could be given to it as it is the direct trail of Daniel Boone.

Along about 1769 or '70 when this whole country west of the Cumberland Mountains was a howling wilderness not only with wild game of every kind but the Red Men of the forest, known as the Cherokees and the Chocktaws and numbers of others, who were continually fighting each other and with these and oter aborigines in what is now known as Kentucky, caused our own glorious state to be called the "Dark and Bloody Ground," Daniel Boone left his home, wife and children in North Carolina in company with a few others and plunged in this state along just where this "Great Highway" now leads and on to the "Beautiful Bluegrass."

His companions left for home after a sort stay and Boone was left all alone in the forest with the wild game and the prowling, warlike, desperate Redmen for several months.

Then he returned to his home and on the 25th day of September, 1773, with his own and five other families, set out on a journey toward Kentucky. In Powell's Valley he was joined by forty more men wo were willing to accept him as a leader. Driving their cattle and swine with their bedding and baggage on pack horses, they pursued their journey in buoyant hope, till they neared Cumberland Gap when they were assailed by a party of Indians and six ofBoone's party were killed including a "dashing son of Boone's.' All then returned to a settlement on the Clinch river about forty miles from the "Gap" and there they stayed through the winter.

But this did not daunt the courage of Boone who a short time afterward did move to Kentucky, and built a fort at Boonesborough. He was afterward captured by the Indians, taken across to Ohio river into Ohio, adopted as one of their own family, escaped back to Kentucky and got to Boonesboroug just in time to help save it from capture by the Indians.

This is only a short hint of Boone's trials in trying to explore and settle Kentucky, but of such travail was born our noble commonwealth, destined to offer up the patriotic blood of her children upon every battlefield of thee ountry.

Kentucy did become the nursing mother of new commonwealths of the great west and has reared up statesmen for the councils of the nation. Her children at home and abroad delight to own and honor her.

In after years Boone died in the forest of Missouri with not one single acre of land he could call his own. A cheap monument at our capital city, marks his resting place.

I think all honor possible should be given him and I am sure that this highway through here should be called te "Booneway Highway."

Respectfully,

C. C. SMITH.

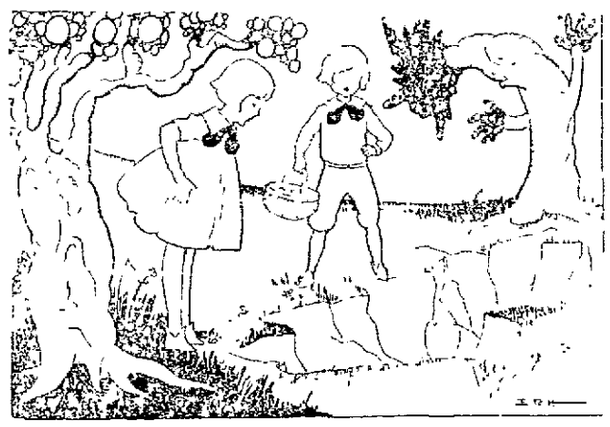
Adventures of The Twins

By Olive Roberts Barton



The Twins continued their journeys in Mix-Up Land

But it seemed silly, an Nancy said, to try to chase a house that kept on jumping around so, as Jack Straw's did. Just now it was up on top of high steeple and kept spinning around when the wind blew like a weather cock.

"I should think it would fall to pieces," said Nick, as it's only made of dominoes stuck together."

"It certainly would," said a voice, "but you see all four winds keep blowing on it at once. That's like four niggers hold a quizzle, it can't fall apart."

"Who it talking?" demanded Nancy. "We can't see anybody. Who are you?"

"Look down the deep hole in front of you, answered the voice. It's a hill that got turned upside down when everything else got turned upside down in Mix-Up Land."

The Twins looked and sure enough, there was the hole.

"Now look at the very bottom," said they voice, "and tell me what you see."

"I just see a queer-looking thing," said Nancy.

"So do I," said Nick.

"Well, that's me! I'm the queer-looking thing. I feel too awful about it even to be careful of my grammar. I should say 'it is I,' although feeling as much ashamed as I do, I hate to say it is either me or I."

"What are you, please?" asked Nancy, who was getting so mixed up herself she couldn't understand a word.

"I'm a windmill that used to stand on top of a high hill. That's what I am. I used to wave my arms whenever I liked. Now look at me! when that rogue, Jack Straw, turned his thumb-ring and made Apple-Pie Land into Mix-Up Land, he fixed me. I wish you could get inside of his domino house and put hi mout."

"We'll try," promised Nick, obligingly.

Berton Braley's Daily Poem

DISILLUSION

By Berton Braley

I'M always a bit optimistic,
I've always been prone to aver
That people were very much better
Than, frankly, I knew that they were;
But even the cheerfullest person
Must learn from his life or his books—
That the stuff in the pastry cook's window
Is seldom as good as it looks!

Those mountains of marvelous pastry,
Those structures of jellies and cream,
Those fairy-like cakes and concoctions,
How toothsome and dainty they seem!
Beware, they are snares and delusions
Constructed by false-hearted crooks,
The stuff in the pastry cook's window
Is seldom as good as it looks.

This ballad, of course, has a moral,
A moral that's simple and blunt;
You can't always judge by appearance
You can't tell a man by his front.
You can't dope a chef by his menu
Until you have tried what he cooks;
The stuffin the pastry cook's window,
Is seldom as good as it looks!

WE'RE READY TO GO WHENEVER SHE IS

Fellowship of Prayer

"He departed into the mountain to pray.' Mark 6:46.

Read Mark 6:35-56.

"Men become dilapidated as stone walls do. The virtues of the soul fall asunder and men need to be rebuilt."

MEDITATION: If Jesus needed to pray, I cannot get on without it. Jesus climbed a mountain for better praying: I cannot afford to be careless in my devotions.

HYMN:

O thou, by who we come to God,
The Life, the Truth, the Way,
The path of prayer thyself hast trod:
Lord teach us how to pray.

PRAYER: O, Almighty God, from whom every good prayer cometh, and who pourest out on all who desire it the spirit of grace and supplication; deliver us, when we draw nigh to thee, from coldness of heart and wanderings of mind, that with steadfast thoughts and kindled affections we may worship thee in spirit and in truth; through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

THE ONE-MAN WOMAN

By Ruth Agnes Abeling.

It was all clear now. Alice had accepted the woman's role in life. She had taken upon her shoulders the burden of sacrifice and regarded explanations as superfluous.

She had had so sincere an affection for J. D. G. whoever the man was that when his life stopped she felt no further purpose in her now. And she had ended it.

But just how far, Kate wondered, had she told the truth on that first visit? Where had her life crossed Dan Ward's? Of one thing Kate was sure, and that, Dan had not been the man Alice loved.

She looked toward the bed where Dorothy was breathing regularly—could Alice's story of the child possibly be true? Was Dorothy Dan's daughter, or had Alice been willing to sacrifice herself for the purpose she had in mind?

Kate blew out the candle, crossed the room. She stood silently beside the sleeping child and studied her features.

In the dim light, the elfi beauty of the child fascinated her. She loved the delicate shadows under the closed lids the suggested curls around the piquant face, the curve of the lovely little arms.

Kate realized as she looked at the little form, that it would be easy to love Dorothy. Indeed, she already had come to be a part of the cottage life.

She dreded the morrow, with its duty of telling the child tat her days at the laundry with Alice and come to an end.

She was eager to talk the thing over with Justin—Justin, who always seemed to know just what to say to set one's heart and mind at peace. From the very beginning that man of the Illinois prairie had been a sort of confessor to his daughter. Kate wondered if it had been his contact with the soil and his love for growing things which had made him so.

She was glad the next morning, when she found him in the kitchen, with fragrant coffee o nthe stove and some strips of bacon sizzling in the pan.

"I heard you come in last night, daughter," he said as Kate appeared in the doorway.

"I wanted to speak to you, but I thought you were asleep."

Kate smiled.

"There are some things, I particularly want to talk over with you," she said.

Justin looked up.

"Nothing happened?" he questioned seeming to sense the unusual.

"Ye—Alice died yesterday. Killed herself," quietly.

Drink Water If Kidneys Hurt

Take a tablespoonful of Salts if Back pains or Bladder bothers.

Too much meat may produce uric acid, says a well-known authority, who warns us to be constantly on guard against kidney trouble.

The kidneys do their utmost to free the blood of this irritating acid, but become weak from the overwork, they get sluggish; the eliminative tissues clog and thus the waste is retained in the blood to poison the entire system.

When your kidneys ache and feel like lumps of lead, and you have stinging pains in the back, or the urine is cloudy, full of sediment, or the bladder is irritable, obliging you to seek relief during the night; when you have severe headaches, nervous and dizzy spells, sleeplessness, acid stomach or rheumatism in bad weather, get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts, take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning, and in a few days your kidneys may act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate clogged kidneys, to help neutralize the acids in urine so it is no longer a source of irritation, thus often ending urinary and bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and can not injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia water drink, and nobody can make a mistake by taking a little occasionally to help to keep the kidneys clean and active. Drink plenty of water at all times.

WOMEN NEED SWAMP-ROOT

Thousands of women have kidney and bladder trouble and never suspect it

Women's complains often prove to be nothing else but kidney trouble, or the result of kidney or bladder disease.

If the kidneys are not in a healthy condition, they may cause the other organs to become diseased.

Pain in the back, headache, loss of ambition, nervousness, are often times symptoms of kidney trouble.

Don't delay starting treatment. Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, a physician's prescription, obtained at any drug store, may be just the remedy needed to overcome such conditions.

Get a medium or large size bottle immediately from any drug store.

However, if you wish first to test this great preparation send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing be sure and mention this paper.

WHAT'S GOING ON IN THE WORLD

By Charles P. Stewart

American public opinion seems to have come over to France's side to a considerable extent since the Ruhr was invaded.

At first the seizure appeared to be regarded very doubtfully here, on the theory that it probably would disturb world business again, with everybody but France wanting it quieter. Now a great deal of sympathy is being expressed with the French policy.

This doesn't mean that American "big business" as changed its mind but only that the average individual has changed his.

It may influence the Washington administration some, and prevent Germany from getting moral support she was hoping for, but it won't help the French much.

England, which is a good deal nearer to the "situation" and has a lot more to say about it than the United States, certainly doesn't want the French Ruhr venture to succeed. True, they do say the British have been changing over to the French side, too, but the British press doesn't sound like it. The more it talks about the French course, the more pessimistic it gets.

Anyway, it is against nature. England is always, not perhaps the open enemy of the strongest continental European nation, but at least opposed to it. It's been the same ever since she became a first class power—as Spain, against France, against Russia, against Germany, in turn. Now it's Frances again.

The British consider the French as dangerous already. If they "get away" with their Ruhr enterprise they'll be still more so.

England isn't going to permit any such thing if se can help it.

Not that the British want the Ruhr trouble to develop into another war. That would be too disorganizing. But its better than an even bet that, through England's tinkering, the whole thing will drift into a hopeless deadlock, and then there'll be mediation, and the windup won't be any too favorable to France, though possibly not to Germany either.

An Unpleasant Thought

A news agency made a rather unpleasant suggestion the other day.

It was this:

Suppose America got into a war—for instance with Japan. Presumably she'd want all the countries which owe her money to pay up promptly. Quite likely she'd be so anxious she'd offer liberal discounts if they'd hasten thei settlements. It would pinch them: of course, but they could afford to be pinched if they got favorable terms enough.

Just that little hint doesn't amount to enough to get suspicious of other countries over, lest they stir somebody to start trouble with us.

All the same, it's been noted that wars sometimes are "framed up" for just such reasons.

For example, only a day or two ago Dean Inge, the popular London pulpit orator, made the public charge that "public passion is being worked up in America for a gratuitous attack on Japan," the kind of remark that isn't calculated to make the Japanese like us.

National Nerves All Jumpy

There have been plenty of small-sized labor troubles in the country of more importance in themselves than the little frontier squabble between Poland and Lithuania.

Of course the reason this petty disturbance attracts so much attention is the fear that some country a good deal bigger—meaning Russia—will break it to it. An incident seemingly of no more consequence served as the signal for the World War to start.

It isn't likely that this spark will touc off any such explosion but it just goes to show how jumpy the world's nerves are that it should cause so much worry.

It's Hard on China

America, England, France and Japan are finding fault with China because she's a trifle behind in meeting some of her foreign financial obligations.

Nobody—creditors excepted—who's familiar with the conditions under which China gets her loans can help sympathize with her a little for hating to pay, not so much the principal as the interest on what she has to borrow shroud.

In the first place, she's always charged a pretty stiff rate—generally around 6 or 7 per cent, which is high for a government.

But the main point is that, having no recognized money unit of her own, whatever China borrows, she gets in silver, at its market price at the time the loan is made.

By an odd coincidence—which international financiers may be able to explain, however—every time a loan is paid over to her the price of sivler chances to be very high, so that the bankers making the loan have to give comparatively little of it, and every time she pays any of it back the price is very low, so that she has to give her creditors a great deal.

In this way, probably it wouldn't be far out of the way to guess that she pays 12 or 15 per cent, on an average, for her foreign borrowings.

BASEBALL LEAGUE URGED BY LYNCH

Asks Neighboring Towns To Organize City Teams ad Promote The "National Game."

LYNCH, March 2—It is now about the time of year to think about our National pastime. The Big League teams have already started South on their training trips and with the coming of warm weather we begin to think of our own prospects for having a team. In our part of the coal field we do not have many amusements and when baseball season comes we are very anxious to not miss a game. In fact many of our loyal fans have kept the "stove league" going all winter and are anxious to see ourfavorite players back in uniform.

The Lynch Bull Dogs won the pennant last year and are looking to to another good team tis year. Several of the old team have been employed by the United States Coal and Coke company during the winter and will heed the first call for practice. These men are good men around the mines and are given places were they can establish themselves permanently Foster, Winger, Heilman, Barton and Kilpatrick are those who have wintered here.

The ball park is being put in good shape now, and is one of theb est in this part of the state and the fans here appreciate it very much. Our grandstand will seat about fifteen hundred people and those who do not want to see the game from the grandstand may stand around the fence and see every part of the field. In this way we can have baseball watched by three or four thousand people, and we can say that many of our games last year attracted that number.

The questio that interests all the fans here is whether we are going to have a league. It seems that some of our neighbors did not and it very profitable last year and do not thing they can raise the money to have a team this year. Of course it costs to have baseball, but with the proper engangement it can be made to cast very little more than many of our other amusements and can one think of anything that will take the place of a good ball game? Lynch is trying to persuade such teams as Norton, Dorchester, Benham, Harlan, Banner Fork, Middlesboro and Pineville into a league. It seems that it would be good idea to have about three or four teams in Virginia and three or four in this field in a league. As it becomes easier to cross the mountain from Lynch to Appalachia this will surely come to pass. It is not a hard trip now. The club from Lynch went across several times last year and did not suer any hardship whatever, it being only a two hour walk. Lynch is anxious to have these teams in a league and get a schedule arranged at an early date. We are also anxious to have any other towns represeted tat want to come in. Lynch is not inviting the gambling class into this league. It is being brought before the Kiwanis clubs of several towns and we are wanting the better class of the respective places represented.

There has been a rumor that there will be a meeting at Middlesboro or Pineville at an early date, and all interested in forming a league will be present and this meeting will be to elect officers and appoint a committee to rdaw up a schedule.

A ski jumper recently jumped 202 feet Carpentier, however, will continue as champion Siki jumper.

Next time a man tells you talk is cheap, ask him if he kows how much a session of Congress costs.

About Food, The Home, Clothes and Other Items of Interest to Women

Patterns Centuries Old Borrowed for Milady's Coming Season's Styles

Designs for the coming season's printed silks have been borrowed from the artistry of many a craftsman long centuries dead

Egyptian Persian Cashmere Bokhara and Paisley patterns are displayed on the same counters Some are subtle harmonies in two or three subdued shades some are riots of color unsubdued

Next in smartness to printed silks come matelasse fabrics not only of silk but also of wool crepe and silk combined or of pure silk combined with fiber

The brocaded pattern may be a stripe a small geometric design or a sprawling all over effect and it is almost sure to be so heavy as to resemble a thick embroidery

Latest engagement to be announced in moviedom is that of Miss Barbara La Marr to William Beery Miss La Marr whose real name is Reatha Watson starred with Doug Fairbanks in The Three Musketeers while Beery added to former laurels by his King Richard in Robin Hood' Beery was formerly the husband of Gloria Swanson

TODAY'S RECIPES

MACKEREL BAKED WITH VEGETABLES.

A Lenten Dish

By Bertha E Shaphegh, of Columbia University.

Clean and split one large or two small mackerel

Melt a quarter cup of butter Add a thinly sliced onion and a finely cut green pepper cooked until slightly brown Then add two cups of canned or fresh tomatoes a teaspoon of sugar, half a teaspoon of salt and an eighth teaspoon of pepper

Put the mackerel in a greased baking pan, cover with the other ingredients, and bake until the mackerel is cooked—about 30 minutes

Wash, pare and cook six small potatoes until they are soft drain and place around the dish with the tomato mixture

Sprinkle two tablespoons of chopped parsley over all

CARE OF KID GLOVES

If gloves have not been stretched at the shop, a cold curling iron may be inserted in each glove finger, and, gently opened Kid gloves should be slightly warmed before putting them on then the glove should be slowly worked onto the four fingers before the thumb is inserted Never run a finger between the kid glove fingers when putting on gloves, it tears the stitching

To remove gloves bring the cuff over the ends of the fingers then pull, with the cuff covering them. Turn immediately and pull glove flat. Let dry well before putting away. In a damp climate (like ours) kid gloves must be kept in a dry place to prevent mildew spots appearing. Never pull gloves off with the teeth.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

Leftover wall paper makes attractive coverings for shelves or for drawer linings

Teach children to wash all fruit before eating It has been through many extremely soiled hands

Wash milk bottle tops under the faucet before opening It is impossible for drivers to keep hands sanitary.

Damp umbrellas should stand on their handles till dry If the moisture collects round the ferrule the cloth soon rots out.

Are you dismayed by the number of nicks Eliza manages to make in the edges of your best and every day dishes? Most of them are caused by striking the faucets Procure bathtub stoppers run a red hot poker thru the center (do this out of doors) and fit them over the ends of the spigots Dry dishes in racks, so Eliza wont wipe two or three plates at once Then your dishes will be free from nicks

MARGUERITE PATTERN
NIPPON CHINA

The Marguerite Pattern is the dainty china with the artistic blue and pink rose border with pure gold handles.

WE are making this special reduction because we have two Nippon patterns and wish to sell out one pattern completely. This is a good opportunity for the women who care for pretty china. The reduction is really 22% since a tariff has been placed on imported china.
